

Concerning CW as a method of communications I would like to state that it has been my experience that youngsters will more readily communicate without words, i.e. keyboarding. It would be prudent to require hams to learn CW so that they can understand good communication skills. When one uses CW to communicate it has a tendency to break all age barriers. This is good for fellowship and learning.